Description: A single family residence designed in the American Foursquare Style. The main roof is a pyramidal hip with decorative brackets at the eave line. There is a brick chimney centered at the peak. There are hipped dormers on two sides, and the dormers have unique wall construction with sides that look like piers. Five-over-one windows are in the dormers. At the far right and left edges (5th Street facade) there are one-over-one, double hung windows, and in the middle there are small one-over-one, double hung windows. A hipped porch roof extends across the 5th Street side, supported on round, tapered columns, and wraps around a portion of the Sheridan facade. A gabled roof with decorative wood designs on the gable face is set at a 45 degree angle to the corner. The main entrance is located to the right side of the 5th Street facade. There large one-over-one, double hung windows at the front corner. The structure is clad in horizontal wood clapboard.

Cultural Data: Home of former Governor Ernest Lister, who at the time of construction was in partnership with his brother Alfred in a company that provided Real Estate, Loans and Insurance, located at 120 S. 10th. Ernest Lister came to Tacoma from Halifax, Yorkshire, England in 1884 with his family. His father, J. H. Lister, was a pioneer iron founder in Tacoma and, after attending business school for a short time, Ernest became an iron molder. At the age of 23 Lister served on Tacoma's city council and a few years later served under Governor John Rogers as chairman of the state board of control. Lister married Alma Thornton, originally from Oregon, in 1893, and they had one daughter and one son.

Lister next founded the Lister Manufacturing Company (lumber), with his brother Albert. At some point he returned his attentions to politics, and after a "whirlwind" campaign, where "...eleven speeches a day was not an uncommon program..." he was elected as the first democratic governor of the state in 12 years, in 1913. Lister was elected to a second term in 1917, where he is listed as a Republican this time. During the state legislative session of 1919, Lister suffered a "...virtual collapse..." and was ordered by doctors to retreat. He was moved to the hospital in Steilacoom, but worsened and was brought to the hospital in Tacoma where he died, at only 48 years of age. The cause of death was heart and kidney disease. Sadly, Alma Lister died only five years later, their daughter Florence died in 1925 at the age of 30, and their son, John died suddenly of spinal meningitis at the age of 27. Their home, described as Colonial in design, was estimated to cost $3,000. A later article states that the house is "...finished throughout in natural Washington fir..." and the cost at completion was $5,000. Proctor & Farrell, architects. 1903
